

Regenerative Farming Internship

City Farm SLO

Are you passionate about sustainability, food systems, and regenerative farming? Join us! The Regenerative Farming Intern works on-site at City Farm SLO to support our mission of modeling sustainable agriculture. This person will work under the direction of our Farm Manager, alongside other Interns, Volunteers, Program Participants, and City Farm Staff.

Internship Benefits:

- Hands-on opportunities to learn innovative agricultural practices including [composting, soil & bed preparation, seed starting, planting, pruning, harvesting, animal care, etc.]
- Opportunity to connect with our extensive network of partners in this space
- Flexible schedule and internship duration
- City Farm SLO is willing to supervise formal internships for course credits and may accommodate specific learning objectives or course requirements at your request
- City Farm SLO is happy to provide letters of recommendation or other support as you pursue employment
- Free organic produce

Intern Responsibilities:

- Take the lead in setting your schedule and actively communicate about your internship learning objectives, goals, and changes to schedule
- Be a self-starter! Working under the Farm Manager, efficiently carry out farming tasks and contribute to our culture of positive, passionate work ethic.
- Work independently and in groups. Communicate effectively with staff, volunteers, other interns, and youth enrolled in our educational programs.
- Be flexible in your willingness to take on different tasks. We all wear lots of hats at City Farm SLO, and you can too! You may have an opportunity to participate in educational programs, farmers' markets, special projects, etc.
- Commit to a regular schedule. Changes and flexibility are always accommodated with notice.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Available to work on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays
- Interest in creating City Farm SLO communications content (social media/website/etc) based on your regenerative farming activity
- Commitment to our organization's mission

Internship details:

- Schedule: 10 - 20 hours a week on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays (flexible)

- Duration: Initial commitment of 3 months preferred - ongoing opportunities available
- Must be 18 years or older

Email info@cityfarmslo.org to apply. Please include your resume and a brief description of your experience, learning objectives, and preferred schedule/duration.